CLOSER LOOK: Only bright spot on her 2010 ledger came courtesy of a fairly easy lead at TP and this one doesn't exactly seem the sort who fits well with this lot; she's had a trio of chances this year, as a new 4yo, and with them has known plenty of opportunity to establish her present level of ability; move to a tougher venue probably won't help the cause at all; better pass.

Here's another who hasn't raced a whole lot and this one went reasonably well in only prior try on the Kee main; improvement certainly possible in first try since Nov. of 3yo season and she has been prepping fairly regularly in the mornings of late; could find the exotics.

Love the names in this pedigree along with the fact that the 4yo won her maiden over this course a year ago; like the tactical speed and that Leparoux sticks with despite the dull yearly bow; with that prep behind her this one figures to be very tough when moved back to Polytrack for only her 2nd spin since May of sophomore season; the one to beat.

Latest was a useful prep but she's a 5yo who has long since established her level of ability at something beneath this company; wide berth helps as does her tractable style but this one would just have to run significantly faster to win this thing; check career-best Beyer of 72 and then look elsewhere for the exacta components. -George Cottrell
